By KENT B. STILES

The humble postage stamp has been utilized by our Post Office Department to commemorate scores of historic events of peace and war and the births and achievements and deaths of famous statesmen, scientists, explorers, artists, authors, composers, educators, Army and Navy and air heroes and others whom today's generation of Americans remembers with quiet pride.

This month brings another such stamp printed at Washington. It was in October on 1797—a century and a half ago—that the famous frigate Constitution, otherwise "Old Ironsides", was launched in a Boston shipyard. The S. S. Constitution is still afloat after all these years, and it is fitting that her sesquicentennial should be postally recalled.

You who have studied United States history know that the Constitution won a brilliant victory during the War of 1812. On Aug. 19 of that year she defeated the British frigate Guerrière. British shots rebounded from the oaken sides of the American vessel and so her crew dubbed her "Old Ironsides"—a title which has come down through the years.

The Constitution's commander during the naval engagement with the Guerrière was Isaac Hull (1773-1843), a native of Derby, Conn. He went to sea as a cabin-boy when he was fourteen and saw thirty-seven years of service—chasing Barbary pirates, carrying gold to Holland, fighting the British, and commanding squadrons in Atlantic, Mediterranean and Pacific waters.

I'M A HERO

SPECS COBURN crushed the local newspaper in his hands and threw it to the floor. Now that Happy Bennings was a hero what chance did he stand with Pam? Happy Benning was almost six feet tall, and about 180 pounds without his football uniform. When he wasn't leering out at people from a newspaper with the word HERO captioned above his photograph, he was hanging around Pam, trying to persuade her to wear his shirt. If Pam would agree to wear his shirt, then Specs would be through. As soon as any girl would wear a fellow's shirt that meant she had a closed mind as far as any other guy was concerned.

Pam was very pretty. That Specs conceded. Happy Benning was handsome no matter what standard you used, but Specs was as small as Happy was large. He was the shrimp in the crowd. He was very light, too. Maybe 90 pounds dripping wet. And to top it off, he wore glasses.

He was the only one in the crowd who wore glasses. He admitted it made him look like something of a freak and it was tough trying to get next to Pam. The fellows often told him to try to date Pam's kid sister who was just about two-and-a-half years old. They told him she was nearer his size and weight. Maybe she would wear his shirt. It might fit her anyway. This was supposed to be very funny, but Specs didn't think so.

And now this. Happy's picture in the paper. A hero! He stopped a hold-up. He was walking past a store and saw two men holding it up. He turned and ran calling the police. His quick thinking, said the Police Captain, had made the capture possible. Happy had something to say too, the paper noted. They carefully quoted Happy as saying, "Shucks it wasn't nothing. Anybody in my place would have done the same."

Bah! Snorted Specs. Anybody would have done the same! What CORN!

The room became stifling. His home had become too small for him and the picture of the HERO staring up at him from the floor. One of them must leave, and since his father hadn't seen the paper yet, Specs got up to go.

He didn't really know where to walk, but he soon found himself walking in the direction of Pam's home. He hoped she wouldn't be home, or looking out the window. He hoped Happy wouldn't be there, and he also hoped that no one of the gang would see him. It was in the midst of the hoping that he heard the explosion. It was a loud muffled noise. Then there were shouts.

Specs began to run. He noticed other people also running and they were turning the corner.

Specs turned the corner and his heart sank. It was Pam's house. It was in ruins. Pam's mother stood outside sobbing. Her dress was torn, and she kept saying over and over again, "My baby . . . My baby . . ."

The gang was running up now. There was Pam with Happy, and in the distance Specs could hear the sirens of approaching fire engines.

Pam was at her mother's side, and Specs could hear Pam's mother brokenly explaining that little Marjorie was still in the house. She had left her in the kitchen, and gone into the bedroom to make the beds. Then there was the smell of gas, and soon the explosion that rocked the house, bringing it down.

The firemen pulled up to the curb, and men with masks and axes jumped off the truck and began to swarm over the ruins.

"We'll try to get the child out as soon as possible," the Fire Chief tried to reassure Pam's mother, "but right now there isn't an opening that a man can crawl through. She's still alive," he added, "we can hear her crying in the back of the house."

She must be in the kitchen yet, thought

Specs as he edged through the crowd. No one had noticed him when he had come upon the scene, and now that he was edging to the rear of the house, he was still unnoticed.

In the backyard he could hear the slight crying of a child. Specs looked about and saw what the Fire Chief had meant. The wall of the house had collapsed like those pictures he had seen of London during the war when the newsreels showed the blitzed homes. There was nothing there but stones and splintered wood. As his eyes swept over the rubble he saw something that made his heart leap. It looked like a hole. And it looked large enough for him to crawl through.

Specs walked slowly over to the hole and debated with himself. Should he get help, or shouldn't he? The whimpering grew louder as he approached the hole, although it seemed weaker. There wasn't time to call anyone. The odor of the gas seemed to choke him, and make him sick.

Specs looked around quickly. There was the garden hose nearby. If only they hadn't shut off the water!

He turned the hose on and the water trickled out. Still some water left! He quickly wet his handkerchief and tied it around his face, and then headed for the hole.

The hole had looked much larger from the outside. Specs began to feel the way Happy Bennings looked. His shoulders seemed very large and broad, and his feet seemed miles long.

Specs had put his arms in first, and was pulling himself along. His shoulders scraped along the rocks and broken wood. It tore his shirt and his skin. The hole seemed to be getting narrower, and the gas was getting thicker. He was beginning to get sick. There was no turning back now, even if he wanted to. His fingers clawed wildly at the narrow opening as he pulled himself up another inch, and clawed again. His nails had broken, and the skin on his fingers was torn, but he had to go on!

And then he broke through. There was little Marjorie on the floor of what had once been the kitchen. She had turned a funny green, and Specs was sure he was turning green himself. He pulled his feet through, slipped and landed with his chin on the floor. Marjorie made no movement to come to him. He dragged himself over to her, and picked her up. He put her on the edge of the hole and she didn't budge. She just stood there on her hands and knees and whimpered.

Specs became angry. He was bleeding in a half a dozen places from his finger tips to his shoulders and knees, and here she stood whimpering. And then he did it. He slapped her!

She let out a slight squeal and scurried forward. He thought he heard some cheers as she cleared the hole and clambored out. He wasn't sure. There was a slight ringing in his ears by this time. Going out was a little easier, but not much. The air was getting clearer, anyway.

He was right about the cheers. There was a crowd. Two firemen pulled him through as soon as he got his arms clear. He took a deep breath. The fresh air smelled good. Pam's mother was kissing Marjorie, and she turned to kiss him, and she was crying.

Flash bulbs were popping and cameras snapped. Specs blinked. His glasses had gotten dirty, and everything he looked at had spots on it.

"Oh, you were wonderful," cried Pam. "You took your life in your hands to save my little sister."

"Oh, it was nothing," Specs heard himself saying. "Anybody in my place would have done the same thing!"

He had said it! The same corn! He could have kicked himself. A fireman with a first aid kit came over to him and told him to take his shirt off so that he could patch him up.

"What'll I do with the shirt?" asked the Fireman, "doesn't seem to be very much left of it."

"Throw it away," sighed Specs, "I don't think I can use it."

"Do you mind if I try it on for size," quickly interrupted Pam.

Did he mind? Specs' head whirled. "I'll tell you what," Specs smiled, "if it fits, you can have it."

The sleeves were torn, the back was shredded, and parts of the tail were gone, but Specs and Pam noted that it fitted . . . It fitted perfectly!

BAD SKIN?

Pimples, Blackheads and Other Externally Caused Blemishes...

Try Skin Doctor's Amazingly Simple Directions And Be Thrilled With The Difference—Often

CLEARED IN ONE SHORT WEEK

"You may see a marvelous skin improvement with the double Viderm treatment," says Betty Memphis, famous Beauty Consultant, "all in 7 days!"

Yes, a healthy, glowing, lovely skin . . . plus the romance, dates, and popularity that follow girls without pimples, blackheads, and other externally caused blemishes . . . in 1 week! In that short time, your skin, (which is basically the same as lovely screen stars' and models') may glow in its natural, true beauty! Just follow Miss Memphis' simple directions!

HERE'S HOW! "Like thousands of others, your skin may be soft, smooth, loveable with a Skin Doctor's prescription, the double Viderm Treatment. Consisting of 2 formulas, the first, Viderm Skin Cleanser, penetrates and acts as an antiseptic on your pores. The second, Viderm Fortified Medicated Skin Cream, leaves an almost invisible protective covering on your skin. Both work gently, thoroughly, bringing undreamed of beauty to you! Use the double Viderm treatment daily until your skin is smoother and clearer . . . then only once a week to remove stale make-up and dirt specks. This helps prevent blackheads as well as externally caused skin miseries and pimples."

Just mail your name and address to Betty Memphis, care of the New York Skin Laboratory, 206 Division Street, Dept. 267, New York 2, N. Y. By return mail you will receive the doctor's directions, and both jars, packed in a safety-sealed carton. On delivery, pay two dollars plus postage. If you wish, you can save the postage fee by mailing the two dollars with your letter. If you are in any way dissatisfied, your money will be cheerfully refunded. To give you an idea of how fully tested and proven the Viderm double treatment is, it may interest you to know that, up to this month, over two hundred and twelve thousand women have ordered it on my recommendation. If you could only see the thousands of happy, grateful letters that have come to me as a result, you would know the joy this simple treatment can bring. And, think of it!—the treatment must work for you, or it doesn't cost you a cent.
